To become comfortable with uncertainty is one of the primary goals in the training of a physician.

~Sherwin B. Nuland

I have not often seen much dignity in the process by which we die.

~Sherwin B. Nuland

For aging is an art. The years between its first intimations and the time of the ultimate letting go of all earthly things can-if the readiness and resolve are there-be the real harvest of our lives.

~Sherwin B. Nuland

There is, to be sure, sometimes only a small difference between being alert to possible danger and allowing oneself to become terrified to the point of paralysis by seeming or imagined portents.

~Sherwin B. Nuland

Empires fall, ids explode, great symphonies are written, and behind all of it is a single instinct that demands satisfaction.

~Sherwin B. Nuland

If we cannot heal in one way, we must learn to heal in another.

~Sherwin B. Nuland

The dignity we seek in dying is not to be found in our final weeks, days or moments but in the way we live and how we are seen by those people whose lives we affect.

~Sherwin B. Nuland

The life sciences contain spiritual values which can never be explained by the materialistic attitude of present day science

~Sherwin B. Nuland

Death is the surcease that comes when the exhausting battle has been lost.
