The greatness of a culture can be found in its festivals

~Siddharth Katragadda

Never indulge in people who follow a negative path because they will take you with them on the road of ruin. Show them the way to positivism even if there's a risk of losing their friendship.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Progress of mankind is the decadence of humanity.

~Siddharth Katragadda

No human is more intelligent than the other...just more adept at certain areas of intelligence.

~Siddharth Katragadda

There cannot be Ups in a roller-coaster ride unless there are Downs.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Marriage is like a table with four legs - the couple, the children, the parents and the in-laws. Break any of these and the marriage crashes to the floor

~Siddharth Katragadda

Life is the inside of a box, and we can't open it.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Your eyes are windows to your dreams; Your ears are windows to your mind; Your nose is the door to your heart - you can win over any man with just your smell.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Being a good human being is very easy: Be a good son, a good husband, a good parent and a good citizen.

~Siddharth Katragadda

I've found that people with flexible ears are the least rigid in life. Best way to find yourself a perfect partner may be as easy as squeezing their ears.

~Siddharth Katragadda

A little arrogance in the hands of the capable is well earned - and in most case, deserved.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Religion is the biggest influence on the intellect and the decadence of a people.

~Siddharth Katragadda

The way I would live my life is: never do something in real life that I would not want to write about in my Autobiography.

~Siddharth Katragadda

The purest water is formed by flowing through the muddiest mountains

~Siddharth Katragadda

Marriage is god's way to ensure there are few great men

~Siddharth Katragadda

Marriage is an excercise in learning our flaws everyday

~Siddharth Katragadda

The car has made our lives more difficult. If not for it, we would have everything we needed within walking distance.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Life is a chain of small sorrows that lead to a great joy.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Greatness is the reward for genius... only a few can be great, the rest are plain good.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Religion is god's population-control tool

~Siddharth Katragadda

Here's one more from my limited experience with all 3 fields: A writer creates life; a poet creates magic from life; a philosopher tries to understand life.

~Siddharth Katragadda

When you have a big problem to solve, break it down to smaller ones first.

~Siddharth Katragadda

What is gained through ignorance is bound to be lost through ignorance

~Siddharth Katragadda

The God of religion exists only in our minds. The real God exists but we can never comprehend him in our minds

~Siddharth Katragadda

Find happiness in tribulation, too. Find it in joy alone and you could lose it, sooner or later, and be left with nothing.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Power in the hands of the stupid is often a dangerous thing. Hitler proved it.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Arranged Marriages don't always have to be risky. Get to know your future in-laws. She's bound to be like one of them.

~Siddharth Katragadda

The case for meat-eaters - if eating meat is a sin, then why are some plants carnivorous?

~Siddharth Katragadda

First generation Indian immigrants are mass guinea pigs. When a race that subsisted on plants for centuries subsists on a meat-dominated diet, it scares me to know what's in store for them

~Siddharth Katragadda

Mastering an art is like reaching the top of the passion mountain.... at the top the passion dies out! So keep learning.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Lovers forget that after marriage and kids, it's no longer a 'relationship' - It's a family.

~Siddharth Katragadda

Couples should keep their love pure before it poisons the purest love of all - that between them and their children

~Siddharth Katragadda

The purest love is the one between parents and their children. The rest may be more elevated, but never as deep or long-lasting.
