I am driven to observe of the ultra-Darwinists the following features as symptomatic. First, to my eyes, is their almost unbelievable self-assurance, their breezy self-confidence.

~Simon Conway Morris

If one compares the sequence of amino acids that go to form the protein haemoglobin, it becomes apparent that humans and chimps are identical and do not differ in a single site.

~Simon Conway Morris

The way Conway Morris goes about biting the hand that once fed him would make a shoal of piranha seem decorous.

~Simon Conway Morris

By obtaining a sense of its place in the unfolding drama of life, set in an ecological theatre, so we can understand why it has become one of the leading players.

~Simon Conway Morris

When discussing organic evolution the only point of agreement seems to be: 'It happened.' Thereafter, there is little consensus, which at first sight must seem rather odd.

~Simon Conway Morris

It is difficult to imagine evolution in alien planets operating in any manner other than Darwinian.

~Simon Conway Morris

It is my opinion that human history can make no sense unless evil doings are recognized for what they are, and that they are bearable only if somehow they may be redeemed.

~Simon Conway Morris

I am puzzled that Conway Morris apparently doesn't grasp the equally strong (and inevitable) personal preferences embedded in his own view of life.

~Simon Conway Morris

Scientists don't believe anything. Scientists test things.

~Simon Conway Morris

Richard Dawkins is arguably England's most pious atheist.
