Quentin [Tarantino] is a filmmaker who really dives into things very seriously and deeply. And when he does interviews, he really wears his heart on his sleeve and he doesn't hold anything back.

~Simon Kinberg

You've got to trust [that] your own compass will lead you away from whatever mistakes were made.

~Simon Kinberg

I'm Jewish, so I don't know much about easter eggs.

~Simon Kinberg

All I can say is, death is a part of life.

~Simon Kinberg

I just want to keep learning.

~Simon Kinberg

Nothing lives up to what you imagine. It changes, shifts, becomes something else.

~Simon Kinberg

There are too many good comic book writers out there. I'd rather remain a fanboy.

~Simon Kinberg

I felt film is art and there are people that constructed that art - and that made me want to be a filmmaker.

~Simon Kinberg

Make movies you love because it's miserable. Every movie I've worked on at one point or another is exhausting, and you feel like you're making a bad movie.

~Simon Kinberg

Every movie has its complexities and its challenges.

~Simon Kinberg

Last thing you want to do with a good movie is hold the audience hostage. As an entertainer myself, I just know it's better when you leave 'em wanting more than to stick around too long.

~Simon Kinberg

The biggest challenge is not the storytelling, it's to track every character's arc through the entire movie.
