Sometimes, you can't seem to find any song on the radio that you like.

~Sondre Lerche

I work with really cool people, and so far I haven't been approached in any embarrassing manner when it comes to image.

~Sondre Lerche

I usually enter the studio with a mix of songs that I've been listening to that are relevant to the sound I want to achieve.

~Sondre Lerche

I started trying to write songs when I was 8 or 9 years old.

~Sondre Lerche

I feel, in a way, on a record, you can be more subtle. In the live setting, everything gets amplified. The dynamics are more extreme in concert.

~Sondre Lerche

When I write, I'm sort of old-fashioned in the sense that I like to write something that I feel I could just perform alone, obviously, because I do that a lot in concert.

~Sondre Lerche

History shows us that the songs - the myth, the experience and the emotion - live longer the less you explain.

~Sondre Lerche

Sometimes you make a record that is what you want to hear. I've made a couple of those, idealized creations of what I wanted to hear. Then there are records that are what you feel.

~Sondre Lerche

I've come more to terms with the fact that I sound like myself. No matter what I do, I sound like myself.

~Sondre Lerche

People need to put my music in a perspective where they use other established artists from the past, and almost all the names I see related to my music are great musicians.

~Sondre Lerche

You know, I play in small, intimate venues; I'm not an arena performer.

~Sondre Lerche

There's a lot of crappy music that people like, you know, all over the world, and Norway is definitely not an exception.
