On the other hand, I'm drawn to top hats, and spats, and mustaches. I haven't read a Missed Connection yet with someone wearing a monocle, but rest assured I'll snap it up if I do.

~Sophie Blackall

I look for ambiguous messages to illustrate...I like some detail but not too much detail.

~Sophie Blackall

Odd things happen in New York, which is why it's such a great source of stories.

~Sophie Blackall

I usually draw in silence, but listen to music or public radio when I'm painting, after all the important decisions have been made.

~Sophie Blackall

But mostly I think two people do share a moment, and we all know that feeling, and it can put a spring in your step for the rest of the day.

~Sophie Blackall

There's arrogance for you. I think all artists insert themselves into their subject matter.

~Sophie Blackall

Some people have recognized their friends in my paintings, but I'm not directly responsible for any hooking up as far as I know!

~Sophie Blackall

There are more than a few messages from lonely people wondering why they never find themselves described...I illustrated one, "How come no one ever misses me?" They kill me, those.
