The sun is the only safe nuclear reactor, situated as it is some ninety-three million miles away.

~Stephanie Mills

The impermanence of the universe is manifest, inescapable. I know that, yet I am immoderately attached to this life, these pleasures, this place.

~Stephanie Mills

It may be an information age, but... It takes more work to earn more money to be overwhelmed by more information that does not equal knowledge or wisdom.

~Stephanie Mills

This is something I love to do. I've never had any other job. I love singing and entertaining.

~Stephanie Mills

Wonder is our erotic affiliation with all of life. If we develop this, enjoy it, and follow its promptings, our wants will be fewer and our needs plainer.

~Stephanie Mills

Lifestyle and livelihood are pivotal moral issues.

~Stephanie Mills

I don't know what it takes to make marriage work, but I'm going to keep trying until I get it right. I haven't given up on love or marriage.

~Stephanie Mills

Solitude is rich but seldom hilarious.

~Stephanie Mills

Therapy can help you grow. Fears will just disappear.

~Stephanie Mills

There is ugliness of mass production and consumerism, the banality of advertising. Although it claims to do just the opposite, it's predicated on disempowering and effacing persons.

~Stephanie Mills

A person with friends need never be bored. There is always more to fathom and enjoy in the complexity of others, and always the possibility of finding a way to delight them.

~Stephanie Mills

I believe entertainers should know what's going on and do their own banking.

~Stephanie Mills

It's the best thing ever - I love being a mom. This is my only child. My career was a priority earlier in my life, but now my son is definitely the priority.

~Stephanie Mills

Seeing is a gift that comes with practice.

~Stephanie Mills

I enjoy being single, but I loved being married.

~Stephanie Mills

Enjoying the least things - a chill glass of water, a moment of play with the cat, the sight of sunlight caught in the frost spangling the locust twigs - is a form of prayer.

~Stephanie Mills

Despair is not a particularly respectable condition and yet despair and delight alternate like systole and diastole in my heart.

~Stephanie Mills

My spirituality is parochial, terrestrial. I do qualify as a W.I.T.C.H. , but my irregular practice and impromptu rituals don't aim at producing any dramatic results except, perhaps, in me.

~Stephanie Mills

I don't drink, I don't smoke and I don't party.

~Stephanie Mills

As the ongoing industrial crusade to turn all earthly life to commercial purpose relentlessly impoverishes the biosphere and human culture, our living images of graceful possibility dwindle.

~Stephanie Mills

Most women don't like good men. They say they want a good guy, but most women always wind up with the bad boy.

~Stephanie Mills

It would be more concerned with the Whole than the parts and has to proceed from the premise that death and pain, short life spans, and no bread without sweat must be accepted.

~Stephanie Mills

It's far too easy to qualify as an eccentric nowadays.

~Stephanie Mills

Friendships offer good practice in accepting the transience of experience and the persistence of feeling.

~Stephanie Mills

Jazz voices that unvanquishable, natural will toward creativity and self-expression, despite everything, in the here and now.

~Stephanie Mills

Time clocks rob the world of wild possibility. That's what they're for.

~Stephanie Mills

Given the diverse raiment life sports, one never knows what the guises of the gods may be.

~Stephanie Mills

Everything that's old is new, and everything that's new is old.

~Stephanie Mills

A life alert to simple pleasures, with perception cultivated and attuned to beauty, and a large capacity for friendship can serve us well come what may.

~Stephanie Mills

Millions have been taken from me. If you are not on top of it and you make a lot of money, and you trust business managers, then, yes, money will be taken from you.

~Stephanie Mills

Recent rampage is a function of the exponential growth of populations and economies. It has to do with globalization and the steady increase in computational power.
