To friends! Life belongs to those who love, and where love reigns is man truly king!

~Stephen R. Lawhead

If thou wouldst seek justice, thyself must be just.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Perhaps it is how we are made; perhaps words of truth reach us best through the heart, and stories and songs are the language of the heart

~Stephen R. Lawhead

How is a man fortunate to live in the darkness, brother?" "Why do you wonder?" asked Blaise. "For only he who has lived in darkness truly knows and values the light.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Do not think it impossible just because it has never happened. - Friar Tuck

~Stephen R. Lawhead

The path is revealed in the treading.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Alea iacta est. The die has been cast.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Two friends . . . there are stronger forces on earth, perhaps, but few as tenacious and enduring as the bond between true friends.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Jump blind and you might find yourself on the rim of a raging volcano, or smack in the middle of a battlefield during a savage war, or on a swiftly tilting ice floe in a tempest-tossed sea.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Knowledge is a burden--once taken up, it can never be discarded.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Three things cannot be called back: the arrow when it speeds from the bow, the milk when the churn is upturned, the word when it leaps from the tongue.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

When heaven joins the battle against you, who could stand?

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Life is a school of the spirit.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

They are young and life has no limits. Nothing is impossible, nothing beyond doing or knowing. The world is theirs and everything in it.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Time is the central mystery of our existence. It confines and defines us in many ways.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

A ley line is what might be called a field of force, a trail of telluric energy. There are hundreds of them, perhaps thousands, all over Britain, and they've been around since the Stone Age.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Death wears many faces, but it's stench is always the same.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

The air crackled with the presage of lightning, and a heavy mist descended around them.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

It had long been an ambition to find the line of force that might lead to the Holy Land in the time of Christ.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Apart from pleasure, beauty also kindles imagination, hope and encouragement. If beauty ceased to exist, we would, in a very real sense, cease to exist--for we would be no longer who we are.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Contrary to what many may think, immortality is not a fairy tale invented to compensate for an unhappy life.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

You see, this universe we inhabit is made up of billions of galaxies literally beyond counting and this is only one universe.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Unbelievers enjoy the security of their unbelief; there is great confidence in ignorance.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Words are worth little when the heart refuses to hear. Therefore, judge us by our works.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Humility, if it comes at all, almost always comes too late.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

I will weep no more for the lost, asleep in their water graves.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Call me Silidons, for such I am.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

That Arthur has not always existed seems odd to me. Like the wind on the moors and the wild winter stars, surely he has always lived . . . and always will.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Do not borrow tomorrow's troubles today

~Stephen R. Lawhead

The Emrys! The Emrys is here!' Merlin shook his head in astonishment. 'Has it come to this?' he wondered. 'Even small children know me by sight.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

What makes you so certain?" "But I am not certain," I told him. "Nothing is certain. You want certainty?" "Yes!" "Then you want death.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

People did not go jumping from one place to another with nothing in between. It simply did not happen.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

Truth is a constant delight to those that love her; such beauty holds no power to offend.

~Stephen R. Lawhead

None of us ever knows what impact we have on the world around us.
