

Steven Weber

Quotes

People, Wings, Mean, War, Media, Democracy, Lying, Right Wing, Games, Reality, Party, Gossip, Jesus, Hair, Order, Noel, Austerity, Talking, Bitter, Math

If you have to lie, cheat, steal, obstruct and bully to get your point across, it must not be a point capable of surviving on its own merits.

~Steven Weber

If only Coca-Cola had had the kind of message to accompany its addictive deliciousness that Fox News has, we'd all be speaking Cokelish today.

~Steven Weber

From the moment America went full-on industrial, it seems like it's been a steady path towards people never having to be physically present in order to satisfy their needs.

~Steven Weber

A nation is not a budget, no matter how much ideologues want it to be so.

~Steven Weber

Everything sells. Like integrity. Like democracy. Like truth. Like deeds.

~Steven Weber

A product is usually created to improve people's lives; otherwise, why buy it? I'm no genius, but I am an American, and gosh-darnit, I consume, so I know what I'm talking about.

~Steven Weber

The right-wing just loves making a big entrance.

~Steven Weber

What's hard, it seems, is living up to the words spoken by Jesus Christ, who preached naught but love and mercy and justice and humility.

~Steven Weber

We fight wars from progressively great heights and distances, the blessings of technology steadily removing the personal human element from what was historically an extremely personal experience.

~Steven Weber

Right-wing extremism is all about patience. That is, until it makes its move, and then it is sudden and explosive.

~Steven Weber

The element which is conveniently missing from today's Republican Party is the human one. People's hopes and realities become numbers and words, devoid of personality and easy to erase.

~Steven Weber

My experience tells me that any time you hear people laughing on a sitcom, it's the writers who happen to be closest to the microphones - not the audience.

~Steven Weber

I tend to be very relaxed on stage, but the nerves have to come out somehow.

~Steven Weber

The spectacle of insensitivity that is the gun lobby and its outspoken, out-of-their-mind apparatchiks, is the apotheosis of what the Republican Party has allowed itself to become.

~Steven Weber

I know it's sappy, but I bet there's a market for civility and niceness out there that, while probably not as titillating as a junkyard scrap between shirtless adversaries, it'd sure be healthier.

~Steven Weber

The flaw in, say, austerity, is that its success is predicated on the relative exactitude of math rather than the shifting, liquid imperfection of peoples lives.

~Steven Weber

In the corporate-owned media, men dressed like Ronald Reagan and women dressed like Rita Hayworth disseminate grotesque exaggerations and gossip in authoritative tones.

~Steven Weber

It's easy to break things. Much, much easier, it seems, than building them.

~Steven Weber

What's hard, it seems, is living up to the expectations Democracy imposes upon those who would participate in society.

~Steven Weber

The GOP/corporate right-wing, it seems, never really considers the consequences of their actions.

~Steven Weber

I've rarely gotten a good review in my life, yet, to paraphrase Noel Coward, I am happy to console myself with the bitter palliative of commercial success.

~Steven Weber

Fantasy-based ideologies invariably have neat happy endings where all the bad people and all the bad behavior goes away when the volume is turned up and enough force is applied.

~Steven Weber

The fact is, presidential politics has become a game of inches.

~Steven Weber

I've been a fan of the Marvel Universe since I was a little child.

~Steven Weber

Related Links:

- People Quotes
- Wings Quotes
- Mean Quotes
- War Quotes
- Media Quotes
- Democracy Quotes
- Lying Quotes
- Right Wing Quotes
- Games Quotes
- Reality Quotes
- Party Quotes
- Gossip Quotes
- Jesus Quotes
- Hair Quotes
- Order Quotes
- Noel Quotes
- Austerity Quotes
- Talking Quotes
- Bitter Quotes
- Math Quotes