I was told I had brain damage. I always knew it was an unfair label. Now I have a clearer understanding of what's wrong and I feel relieved and a bit more relaxed about myself.

~Susan Boyle

There are enough people in the world who are going to write you off. You don't need to do that to yourself.

~Susan Boyle

I was slightly brain damaged at birth, and I want people like me to see that they shouldn't let a disability get in the way. I want to raise awareness - I want to turn my disability into ability.

~Susan Boyle

Nothing is impossible. It can be downright difficult, but not impossible.

~Susan Boyle

Singing for royalty is a dream of mine - I'd absolutely love to sing for the Queen at the Royal Variety Show. All the contestants are very good. I will just have to do my best and see what happens.

~Susan Boyle

I needed to stop eating sweeties and cakes. It's the bane of my life. I had to lose the weight for my health.

~Susan Boyle

I'm trying to be a professional singer. ... I've never been given the chance before. But here's hoping it'll change.

~Susan Boyle

I'm so proud of my son for being so funny!

~Susan Boyle

I was always musical - yelling when I was a baby, singing into a brush and singing in the shower.

~Susan Boyle

I would love to adopt a child too but my cat might get jealous. I don't want to see a cat and a baby fighting. It's something I might do later.

~Susan Boyle

People who bullied me have matured now. Some are good friends.

~Susan Boyle

When you sing, you put on a persona. I hide behind that person on stage. You can feel like death, but you have to put it on. The audience wants to see someone smiley.

~Susan Boyle

The one's who were mean to me are now nice to me.

~Susan Boyle

As long as I don't break the camera, I'll be fine.

~Susan Boyle

My love of singing is hereditary.
