Recognized probity is the surest of all oaths.

~Suzanne Curchod

Obstinacy is ever most positive when it is most in the wrong.

~Suzanne Curchod

Make your best thoughts into action.

~Suzanne Curchod

Order in a house ought to be like the machinery in opera, whose effect produces great pleasure, but whose ends must be hid.

~Suzanne Curchod

For the honest people, relations increase with the years. For the vicious, inconveniences increase. Inconstancy is the defect of vice; the influence of habit is one of the qualities of virtue.

~Suzanne Curchod

Fortune does not change [people], it unmask them.

~Suzanne Curchod

Women do not often have it in their power to give like men, but they forgive like Heaven.

~Suzanne Curchod

A pure style in writing results from the rejection of everything superfluous.

~Suzanne Curchod

One of the first observations to make in conversation is the state, or the character, and the education of the person to whom we speak.

~Suzanne Curchod

It is never permissible to say, I say.

~Suzanne Curchod

How immense to us appear the sins we have not committed.

~Suzanne Curchod

Too many wish to be happy before becoming wise.

~Suzanne Curchod

The most subtle flattery that a woman can receive is by actions, not by words.

~Suzanne Curchod

The quarrels of lovers are like summer storms. Everything is more beautiful when they have passed.

~Suzanne Curchod

When death gives us a long lease of life, it takes as hostages all those whom we have loved.

~Suzanne Curchod

Innocence and mystery never dwell long together.

~Suzanne Curchod

Where love and wisdom drink out of the same cup, in this everyday world, it is the exception.

~Suzanne Curchod

To love one that is great, is almost to be great one's self.

~Suzanne Curchod

Elegance is exquisite polish.

~Suzanne Curchod

The more heart, the more sorrow.

~Suzanne Curchod

Romance is the poetry of literature.

~Suzanne Curchod

The heart of a good man is the sanctuary of God in this world.

~Suzanne Curchod

Love is the only possession which we can carry with us beyond the grave.

~Suzanne Curchod

Remarkable places are like the summits of rocks; eagles and reptiles only can get there.

~Suzanne Curchod

Indulgence, twin sister of guilt.

~Suzanne Curchod

One can impose silence on sentiment, but one can not give it limits.

~Suzanne Curchod

Love is the pass-key to the heart.

~Suzanne Curchod

It is often a sign of wit not to show it, and not to see that others want it.

~Suzanne Curchod

A woman must be truly refined to incite chivalry in the heart of a man.

~Suzanne Curchod

It were no virtue to bear calamities if we did not feel them.

~Suzanne Curchod

Our own cast-off sorrows are not sufficient to constitute sympathy for others.

~Suzanne Curchod

You may be more prodigal of time than of money.

~Suzanne Curchod

Fiction is a potent agent for good--in the hands of the good.

~Suzanne Curchod

Obligation is the bitterest thralldom.

~Suzanne Curchod

Gallantry thrives most in the atmosphere of the court.

~Suzanne Curchod

Dignity and love do not blend.

~Suzanne Curchod

In looking around me seeking for miserable resources against the heaviness of time, I open a book and I say to myself, as the cat to the fox: I have only one good turn, but I need no other.

~Suzanne Curchod

That woman is happiest whose life is passed in the shadow of a manly, loving heart.
