...In the vast majority of drug experiments, it is not uncommon for none or one or two of hundreds of patients to benefit from the drug.

~Ted Gup

These human experiments have gone largely unchallenged and unquestioned by Congress, the medical profession, and the scientific community at large.

I would argue that in times of war, sealed lips sink entire democracies. If we don't have access to vital information, we lose everything.

~Ted Gup

There's no faster way or surer way to consolidate power and disenfranchise critics than to operate in secret. So this plays squarely into the promotion of the unitary executive. That's one factor.

~Ted Gup

Secrecy doesn't attach to particular parties; it attaches to power. All of the bull work is in place for whomever succeeds. That's my concern.

~Ted Gup

It will be important to restore those provisions, those disclosure provisions, those release provisions so that presidents are indeed held accountable and their information and papers are made public.

~Ted Gup

The SBUs have spread like kudzu and are choking off everyone's ability to see what the hell's going on in government.

~Ted Gup

The mechanics vary from place to place and from office to office. The handling of SBUs can be different in the same agency just across the hall, one from another. There are virtually no standards.
