Your life is a blank, and you're barely a shade across it.

~Tim Lebbon

Hate misleads, fear distorts and love blinds.

~Tim Lebbon

To the discovered, the discoverer can be a god.

~Tim Lebbon

At the heart of any poor soul not at one with the Force, there is only void.

~Tim Lebbon

I like to think I'm positive and optimistic about things generally, but what I write does tend towards the darker end of the spectrum.

~Tim Lebbon

Love is harsh, and it consumes. And more than anything, it demands sacrifice.

~Tim Lebbon

The Force is neither light nor dark, master nor slave, but a balance between extremes.

~Tim Lebbon

Voyaging great distances -- through forests, from island to island, across plains and into the mountains -- is all about finding ourselves.

~Tim Lebbon

Nature is a big influence on my work. That's where the cosmic element comes in, an awareness of the relevance of what we do as a species, why we do it, and its implications.

~Tim Lebbon

If you do not fear God, then fear your dreams, because they're how He talks to you.

~Tim Lebbon

Dreams are life, real life, not simply reflections. Dreams are honest.

~Tim Lebbon

Real fear is like intense pain. It's there to warn you something's truly wrong.

~Tim Lebbon

Humans crave knowledge, and when that craving ends, we are no longer human.

~Tim Lebbon

Between a gasp and a sigh, a life can change forever.

~Tim Lebbon

Love is a warm brain, not a leaping heart.

~Tim Lebbon

Do you have to feel something for it to be real or mean anything? Can you touch your dreams, taste your imagination.

~Tim Lebbon

Any writer takes inspiration from what they read and watch, and over their career works on forming their own voice. I think it was probably Stephen King who made me want to become a writer.
