Having a baby is like falling in love again, both with your husband and your child.

~Tina Brown

Powerful women always interpret hostility as unrequited love.

~Tina Brown

TV journalism is a much more collaborative, horizontal business than print reporting. It has to be, because of the logistics. Anchors are wholly dependent on producers to do all the hustling

~Tina Brown

The cloud that descended on Black Rock on Monday was not for the past but the future. How much will this debacle chill the pursuit of other risky investigations?

~Tina Brown

Manners are the ability to put someone else at their ease...by turning any answer into another question.

~Tina Brown

What's interesting about the Taliban, is they're more afraid of educating girls than they are of drones. One educated girl is more scary to the Taliban than a drone.

~Tina Brown

Admitting weakness seems to be such a severe psychic threat for Bush that when he makes a mistake it's safer just to reinforce it. The strategy creates a perverse system of rewards and punishments

~Tina Brown

To win respect, the networks seem to feel they have to keep absurdly overstating their anchors' reporting cred

~Tina Brown

In the end, Dan Rather's legend skewered him, CBS and the craft of journalism.

~Tina Brown

I'm trying to be entertaining without being mean

~Tina Brown

I think that big, sort of theatrical relaunches tend to set you up for failure and hype.

~Tina Brown

I love to run smart essays and commentary. But it doesn't replace the other kind of reporting

~Tina Brown

I think for a young journalist, it's better to write for the Web at the moment than it is for print

~Tina Brown

Wearing hats has become like fine art for me.

~Tina Brown

Hide from change and it will hide from you

~Tina Brown

I just simply write as it moves me. I may be writing about a book or a movie or a person, places where I've been or something I've done. Or politics. It's going to what's on my mind at the moment

~Tina Brown

Once in a while you have to bite the hand that reads you.

~Tina Brown

In TV, you always feel you are standing on the tracks of an oncoming

train
