

Tito Colliander Quotes

Asceticism, Self, Pride, Wish, Men, Soul, Spiritual, Heaven, Bidding, Path, New Life, Looks, Evil, Soul And Body, Lord, Battle, Obstacles, Doe, Distance, Action

We notice the person who is for ever bowing and fussily servile, and perhaps say, How humble he is! But the truly humble person escapes notice: the world does not know him.

~Tito Colliander

It is precisely our egoism, our self-centeredness and self-love that cause all our difficulties, our lack of freedom in suffering, our disappointments and our anguish of soul and body.

~Tito Colliander

However weighed down and entangled in earthly fetters you may be, it can never be too late.

~Tito Colliander

It begins here, and has no end, and no earthly power can coerce it; and it is to be found in the human heart.

~Tito Colliander

You must learn to follow privately the Lord's bidding: not to speak empty words, not to adorn yourself, always to obey authority, not to look at a woman with desire, not to be angry and much else.

~Tito Colliander

It is for us to begin. If we take one step towards the Lord, he takes ten towards us -- he who saw the prodigal son while he was at a distance, and had compassion and ran and embraced him.

~Tito Colliander

Remember: there is no place, no community, no external circumstance that is not serviceable for the battle you have chosen. The exception is only such work as directly serves your vices.

~Tito Colliander

This obstinate will to personal happiness is the cause of unrest and division in your soul. Give it up and work against it: the rest will be given you without effort.

~Tito Colliander

Instinct seeks satisfaction. Love is free of all demands.

~Tito Colliander

Say nothing of the new life you have begun or of the experiment you are making and experiences you expect to have. All this is a matter between God and you, and only between you two.

~Tito Colliander

The saints' deep secret is this: do not seek freedom, and freedom will be given you.

~Tito Colliander

Faith comes not through pondering but through action.

~Tito Colliander

Thus you are led from moment to moment in your halter of preoccupation with self, and kindled instantly to displeasure, impatience or anger if an obstacle intervenes.

~Tito Colliander

Nothing happens accidentally or in such a way that you cannot learn from it; you must understand this at once, for this is how your trust grows in the Lord whom you have chosen to follow.

~Tito Colliander

If you were not full of self-pity you would soon observe that we ourselves are to blame for all this evil, because we refuse to understand that it is in reality a good thing.

~Tito Colliander

Cast off the burden of sin and you will find within you the upward path that will make your ascent possible.

~Tito Colliander

Related Links:

- Asceticism Quotes
- Self Quotes
- Pride Quotes
- Wish Quotes
- Men Quotes
- Soul Quotes
- Spiritual Quotes
- Heaven Quotes
- Bidding Quotes
- Path Quotes
- New Life Quotes
- Looks Quotes
- Evil Quotes
- Soul And Body Quotes
- Lord Quotes
- Battle Quotes
- Obstacles Quotes
- Doe Quotes
- Distance Quotes
- Action Quotes