As I get older, I just prefer to knit.

~Tracey Ullman

I used to dress up and impersonate our next-door neighbor, Miss Cox. She wore rubber boots, a wool hat, and her nose always dripped.

~Tracey Ullman

I don't see myself as a stand-up comic doing cynical, mean-spirited or disrespectful stuff. I'm very aware that I don't like to disrespect people too much.

~Tracey Ullman

As you get older, you realize it's work. It's that fine line between love and companionship. But passionate love? I'd love to know how to make that last.

~Tracey Ullman

As soon as you find the key to success, somebody always changes the lock.

~Tracey Ullman

It's funny - if you impersonate somebody, they have no idea it's them.

~Tracey Ullman

I loved the late Gilda Radner. I love Carol Burnett and Lily Tomlin.

~Tracey Ullman

I love John Waters. There's stuff in it that's beyond the boundaries of my taste, but his movies have always been like that.

~Tracey Ullman

I've never looked ahead very much in my life. I've never had any grand plan from the outset. I had no burning ambition to do what I do

~Tracey Ullman

I've always had to create my own markets and I've always been at a juncture in my career.

~Tracey Ullman

I like going to France, because no one knows who I am.

~Tracey Ullman

I think serial monogamy says it all.

~Tracey Ullman

I don't get very involved in the L.A. scene. When you do get invited out, you are expected to be on all the time. It's just wearying.

~Tracey Ullman

I hope I never get so hard up I have to do advertisements. I've gotten ridiculous offers.

~Tracey Ullman

The show I did in England catered to a broad range of people. I like that. I don't want nouveau cult status, though I know we've got that sort of audience in the states.

~Tracey Ullman

Work is important to me. I want to do things for principle, not just for the sake of doing them.

~Tracey Ullman

Personally, I think any more than two or three kids is not a family, it's a litter.

~Tracey Ullman

It's the poignancy and sadness in things that gets to me.

~Tracey Ullman

Did you know David Letterman was offered millions of dollars to do a commercial for dog food?

~Tracey Ullman

I never wanted to do political satire because it seems too surface to me.

~Tracey Ullman

I became an American in 2006. It got me thinking about what is my America and what's my perception of America.

~Tracey Ullman

Why does everyone think the future is space helmets, silver foil, and talking like computers, like a bad episode of Star Trek?

~Tracey Ullman

My influences were Peter Sellers and the great British character actors.

~Tracey Ullman

I'm usually put off by performers when they get political

~Tracey Ullman

I just love to impersonate people, and I impersonate people because I find them fascinating.

~Tracey Ullman

It's sometimes shocking to find out what people really believe in.

~Tracey Ullman

I've always gotten a positive reaction to doing African-American characters.

~Tracey Ullman

There's nothing I won't attempt.

~Tracey Ullman

I wish I could believe that one person could make a difference.

~Tracey Ullman

I just want to do good work.

~Tracey Ullman

I love documentaries, I like observing real people.

~Tracey Ullman

Every character I do is based on someone I know.

~Tracey Ullman

I never worked with a dialogue coach before, but I'd hate it if an American did a British accent and didn't do it well. It would be insulting.

~Tracey Ullman

I worked with Paul McCartney for a while and saw what it does to you to be treated like a god for twenty years.

~Tracey Ullman

I'm fascinated by Bollywood.

~Tracey Ullman

You become so encapsulated in this world of being a star. People listen to what you say, you have this voice, it becomes unreal and you become far removed from the people you came from.

~Tracey Ullman

My mum would like to see me on the cover of 'Good Housekeeping' demonstrating children's toys with some nice lipstick on.

~Tracey Ullman

I'm still that little girl who lisped and sat in the back of the car and threw vegetables at the back of her head when we drove home from the market. That never goes.

~Tracey Ullman

It's like a woman's birthright to knit. It's primal. It's timeless. You don't need electricity to knit. You can do it with a candle, girls!

~Tracey Ullman

Great pressure is put on kids who don't have dads to get out and make money, and make life easier for everybody. It was always, 'Hurry up, grow up, make money, there's no man to do it for us.'

~Tracey Ullman

I've always been a misfit.

~Tracey Ullman

I'm as famous as I want to be.

~Tracey Ullman

There are different types of love, and my love for my child is like me and my mum. We've gone through a lot of rocky patches, but we never stop loving.

~Tracey Ullman

It makes you more open, it gives you perspective, having a child

~Tracey Ullman

I'm not a crazy, party-going sort of person.

~Tracey Ullman

I'm sick of environmentalism.

~Tracey Ullman
