Your favorite story, whatever it might be, was written for one reader

~Victor Levin

I like to write about love plus an obstacle. Not a really big obstacle; not too serious and not too funny. Just somewhere nicely in between - a combination of the two.

~Victor Levin

You want to surround yourself with people who are as dedicated to their discipline as you are to yours and let them do what they do.

~Victor Levin

Believe me, you can be in the middle of a beautiful take and the next thing you know you're awash in people crossing the street. You can't even find your actors.

~Victor Levin

It's funny when you put music up against picture, and all your preconceptions go away, and you start over. You just realize that that doesn't work at all.

~Victor Levin

There are people who are put on this earth to do everything.

~Victor Levin

I knew I wanted to work in Cinemascope because I find it much more beautiful just in terms of the shape of the screen, the wider image, and it's also less like television, which is important.

~Victor Levin

I think everybody has a little rule follower and a little rule breaker in them.

~Victor Levin

It's always hard, but it's always fun to attack a premise that you think is interesting. It does take a few drafts for sure.

~Victor Levin

Sometimes you go against what they say because you believe in it anyway.
