From the stars we come, to the stars we go. Life is but a journey into the unknown.

~Walter Moers

Ordinary folk prefer familiar tastes - they'd sooner eat the same things all the time - but a gourmet would sample a fried park bench just to know how it tastes.

~Walter Moers

For some miracles can only occur in the dark.

~Walter Moers

Wednesdays were the best thing about Atlantis. The middle of the week was a traditional holiday there. Everyone stopped work and celebrated the fact that half the week was over.

~Walter Moers

No one who writes a good book is really dead.

~Walter Moers

Someone with an obsession for arranging things in alphabetical order was an abcedist, whereas someone with an obsession for arranging them in reverse alphabetical order was a zyxedist.

~Walter Moers

If flatness were funny, a dinner plate would be hilarious.

~Walter Moers

Anyone can write. Some people can write a bit better than others; they're called authors. Then there are some who can write better than authors; they're called artists.

~Walter Moers

Life is too precious to be left to chance

~Walter Moers

Stealing from one author is plagiarism; from many authors, research.

~Walter Moers

never trust a Troglotroll

~Walter Moers

Reading is an intelligent way of not having to think.

~Walter Moers

On horseback you feel as if you're moving in time to classical music; a camel seems to progress to the beat of a drum played by a drunk.

~Walter Moers

The written word is redundant on the high seas. Why? Because paper gets wet too easily.

~Walter Moers

People always covet what they themselves do not possess.

~Walter Moers

Wine is drinkable sunlight. It's the most glorious summer's day imaginable, captured in a bottle.

~Walter Moers

Im as good as dead, but they haven't buried me yet.

~Walter Moers
