I grew up in Greenwich Village. Dad was friends with John Lennon and Yoko Ono.

~Yancy Butler

My taste in music and entertainment is quite eclectic.

~Yancy Butler

I'm open to sci-fi, but I was never a diehard fan. I have no idea why it keeps following me. I'm extremely lucky, I guess; it's a lucrative venue.

~Yancy Butler

I think sometimes women who are supposed to be strong are also written as mean and vindictive.

~Yancy Butler

I never worked less than 16-hour days on South Beach.

~Yancy Butler

My father used to sing to me in my mother's womb. I think I can name about any tune in two beats.

~Yancy Butler

My junior high was dreadful. I see a lot of my fellow alumni on America's Most Wanted.

~Yancy Butler

Women have been kicking ass for centuries.

~Yancy Butler

People just kind of associate me with kicking some ass.

~Yancy Butler

I've spent a lot of time and money trying to keep my anger in control.

~Yancy Butler

My grandfather was a cop in Long Island. I often try to draw on things that I've heard about him.

~Yancy Butler

Don't we all just really try to fake it well?

~Yancy Butler

I am so happy to be on a show with writing I wanted to participate in.

~Yancy Butler

I love old movies. The '40s theatre pace is fantastic.

~Yancy Butler

My mother's side of the family was in the production side of theatre. My grandfather, Jose Vega, was a general manager for Neil Simon shows on Broadway.

~Yancy Butler

I can be extremely vulnerable. People are tough on me because they think I can handle it.

~Yancy Butler

I dig science fiction, though it was never really my thing.

~Yancy Butler

I hope I don't just sit around moping for two years.

~Yancy Butler

Yancy is actually a Native-American name, but I'm Irish. Go figure.

~Yancy Butler

I've always played strong women who are doing their own thing.

~Yancy Butler

I pretty much make time for that weekly manicure.

~Yancy Butler

I'm just an actress. They try to give me as little information as possible.

~Yancy Butler

Whether it goes to series or stands by itself, I'm proud of what we did with it, not only from the standpoint of what it could have been, but for itself.

~Yancy Butler

I don't know that I'd necessarily want to see into the future. I don't want to know what's happening next.

~Yancy Butler

I'll try anything once.

~Yancy Butler

I had to skydive for the movie and I was terrified. Like everybody, I thought it was going to be one of those experiences that changes your life. It didn't.

~Yancy Butler

I'm the oldest 26-year-old I know. A lot of experience has been crammed into a short amount of time. Some days I feel a good 65, 70. Like I want to lie down.

~Yancy Butler

To say I'm the easiest person to live with would be a lie.

~Yancy Butler

Once you get into a part, and someone sees you, you get asked to do it again.

~Yancy Butler

A comic can be aesthetically beautiful. I think they captured it beautifully and accurately.

~Yancy Butler

I think seeing some of the past can be helpful, especially if you're into crime solving.
