I arise full of eagerness and energy, knowing well what achievement lies ahead of me.

~Zane Grey

If I fished only to capture fish, my fishing trips would have ended long ago.

~Zane Grey

Love of man for woman--love of woman for man. That's the nature, the meaning, the best of life itself.

~Zane Grey

What makes life worth living? Better surely, to yield to the stain of suicide blood in me and seek forgetfulness in the embrace of cold dark death.

~Zane Grey

There are always greater fish than you have caught, always the lure of greater task and achievement, always the inspiration to seek, to endure, to find.

~Zane Grey

Never insult seven men when all your packing is a six-shooter.

~Zane Grey

Fishing is a condition of mind wherein you cannot possibly have a bad time.

~Zane Grey

There was never an angler who lived but that there was a fish capable of taking the conceit out of him.

~Zane Grey

I will see this game of life out to its bitter end

~Zane Grey

I can write best in the silence and solitude of the night, when everyone has retired.

~Zane Grey

The difficulty, the ordeal, is to start.

~Zane Grey

Men may rise on stepping stones of their dead selves to higher things.

~Zane Grey

I need this wild life, this freedom.

~Zane Grey

It was a decent New Year's, but it took a million officers to make it so.

~Zane Grey

Fishermen, no matter what supreme good fortune befalls them, cannot ever be absolutely satisfied. It is a fundamental weakness of intellect.

~Zane Grey

Love grows more tremendously full, swift, poignant, as the years multiply.

~Zane Grey

Work is my salvation. It changes my moods.

~Zane Grey

Writing was like digging coal. I sweat blood. The spell is on me.

~Zane Grey

I hope I have found myself, my work, my happiness - under the light of the western skies.

~Zane Grey

A good rule of angling philosophy is not to interfere with any fishermans ways of being happy, unless you want to be hated.

~Zane Grey

I see so much more than I used to see. The effect has been to depress and sadden and hurt me terribly.

~Zane Grey

No one connected intimately with a writer has any appreciation of his temperament, except to think him overdoing everything.

~Zane Grey

These critics who crucify me do not guess the littlest part of my sincerity. They must be burned in a blaze. I cannot learn from them.

~Zane Grey

I am tired. My arm aches. My head boils. My feet are cold. But I am not aware of any weakness.

~Zane Grey

Today I began the novel that I determined to be great.

~Zane Grey

I am full of fire and passion. I am not ready yet for great concentration and passion.

~Zane Grey

This motion-picture muddle had distracted me from my writing.

~Zane Grey

I must go deeper and even stronger into my treasure mine and stint nothing of time, toil, or torture.

~Zane Grey

Realism is death to me. I cannot stand life as it is.

~Zane Grey

Adam Larey gazed with hard and wondering eyes down the silent current of the red river upon which he meant to drift away into the desert

~Zane Grey

What is writing but an expression of my own life?

~Zane Grey

Where I was raised a woman's word was law. I ain't quite outgrown that yet.

~Zane Grey

Every once in a while I feel the tremendous force of the novel. But it does not stay with me.
